Altrusa Foundation, working together with Amity Foundation in China, is providing foster care for nine children and tuition costs for two college students from Gao'an SWI as well as five of the foster children. Institute staff visit regularly to support children and foster families, and communicate with their schools and teachers.

This year, the SWI will build a new building for seniors living on fixed incomes.

Some of Our Foster Children

(Who are also sponsored in school if old enough.)

G.J. turned two in July, and learned to walk by herself. She is charming and outgoing, showing curiosity for everyone and everything.

G.A., 19, is spending summer vacation with her foster family. The owner of the Internet café she worked for previously thought so much of her that he asked her to return this year.

G.F. is 13 and has epilepsy. He's outgoing and expressive, and enjoys basketball and art; he wants to be a painter when he grows up .

This is G.J., who has born with a malformed colon and turned one year old in May. He's adapted well to his foster family, and they're encouraging him to learn to walk. So far he climbs better than he walks!

Our College Students

G.A. is 19, and will start her second year at the Nanchang College of Technology after spending the summer with her foster parents. She is quiet, loves to read, and is getting her driver's license.

G.A. is 20 now, and is currently in the U.S. visiting the family that hosted her during her high school exchange student year. She will begin her second year at the Jiangxi Province Tourism Business College, where she excels and participates in many activities.
